

Robert A. Lowe, MD, MPH, is a Professor in the Department of Emergency Medicine, the Department of Public Health and Preventive Medicine, and the Department of Medical Informatics and Outcomes Research at Oregon Health & Science University (OHSU). He is Senior Scholar in the Center for Policy and Research in Emergency Medicine at OHSU. He is residency trained and board certified in both emergency medicine and internal medicine.

Before coming to OHSU, he served on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania Department of Emergency Medicine and Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics from 1993 through 2001.

Dr. Lowe has performed extensive health services and epidemiologic research, with funding from the Agency for Healthcare Quality and Research, the National Institutes of Health (NINDS, NHLBI), Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, William Penn Foundation, and other sources. His major research focus is appropriate use of the emergency department and access to medical care for vulnerable populations.

He has served as a reviewer for the Institute of Medicine report, “A Shared Destiny,” as a standing study section member for the Agency for Healthcare Quality and Research, as a special study section member for the National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke, as Consulting Editor for the Annals of Emergency Medicine and a guest reviewer for JAMA, Health Services Research, Annals of Internal Medicine, Academic Emergency Medicine and other journals.
